

Make a castle your classroom

Deliver short-term academic courses, field schools, or research programs in England, UK, in an established academic environment. Bader College, part of Queen's University Canada, welcomes faculty at universities and colleges from around the world to deliver short-term programs and experiences at Herstmonceux Castle Estate in East Sussex.

Your curriculum • Your teaching • Your learning outcomes • Our support

Everything you need to deliver an exceptional international program.

Queen's University Canada

BADER COLLEGE at Herstmonceux Castle

Your program. Delivered your way.

Why Bader College?

Students learn in a fully residential community, with seminars, labs, and fieldwork at a single site. Teaching shifts seamlessly between learning spaces, a historic castle, and a 600-acre estate, supporting place-based learning, environmental research, and interdisciplinary teaching. As part of Queen's University, Bader College offers the reliability and reputation of an established academic partner with flexible programs tailored to your curriculum.

The estate is a gateway to Europe with excellent links to international hubs, including London Gatwick and Heathrow Airports, enabling travel to various UK and European destinations for additional exploration and research.

What can I run at Bader?

- Short courses (< 4 months)
- Field schools
- Study abroad programs
- Research projects
- Professional development
- Academic conferences and retreats

What does Bader offer?

- Modern teaching spaces
- Wet and dry laboratories
- Residential accommodation for up to 110 students
- Faculty apartments
- Catering, IT, and operational support
- Historic castle and 600-acre living laboratory

Interested? We welcome faculty, universities, and colleges from around the world to deliver short-term programs and experiences with us.

Scan the QR code opposite or email: bc.academic.education@queensu.ca